I created an account/submitted an application in the past but I am having trouble logging in. What should I do?

Booz Allen Hamilton transitioned to a new recruiting system called Workday at the end of 2016. If you created an account on our career site prior to December 23, 2016 the user name and password you created previously will not work with our new system and you must create an account in Workday. If you are already in contact with a Booz Allen recruiter about your application and have not yet created an account in Workday, please connect with them for further instructions.

I created a new account in Workday and submitted my resume. How can I check the status of my application?

I was contacted by someone who I am not sure is an official Booz Allen representative and I have concerns about their intentions and/or think they may not be legitimate. What should I do?
